Introduction

This handbook has been designed to provide guidance to promote a successful primary to secondary transition for all learners in Oxfordshire, including vulnerable learners that may need an enhanced transition. The handbook aims to provide a supportive structure to the transition process and includes a range of tools that have been developed in partnership with pupils, school staff and various local authority teams.

Within this handbook you will find the following:

Checklists for planning the transition process – for key primary and secondary staff managing transition.

Transition process guidelines and a transition timeline – to provide a visual overview of the transition process including when each tool should be used during the transition process.

Year 5/6 screening tool – to support primary staff to identify vulnerable learners.

Transition thinking ahead tool – to support thinking about transition for vulnerable learners in Year 5/6 and what support is needed from primary before transition.

Information form on pupils needing an enhanced transition – to be completed by primary schools (year 6 teachers) for the vulnerable learners in their class.

Action plan for vulnerable learners – to capture the information shared by primary staff and plan support for transition for vulnerable learners.

There are also several supportive documents alongside the tools listed above including:

Top tips for transition – collated from the literature review and the views of staff we have worked in partnership with.

Helpful transition documents guide – a list of supportive documents available from other agencies.

FAQs for transition.

Transition process guidelines

The following guidance should be used by settings to ensure effective support and coordinated planning, to assist in the successful transition of learners between primary and secondary school.

Primary settings

Whole school approach:

As a school, consider the provision for vulnerable learners at a universal, targeted, and individual level. The educational psychology service's good practice guidance 'promoting wellbeing in schools' may be a useful tool to support reflection and planning.

Start of year 5:

1. Staff in the primary school, who know the pupils well, should use the 'year 5/6 screening tool for transition' (section 3) to identify pupils who may need extra support during the transition to secondary school (an 'enhanced transition').
2. For each pupil identified, plan and implement strategies to teach the skills the pupil will need for a positive transition. Try using the 'transition: thinking ahead' form (section 5). This identifies strengths and areas to develop so that strategies can be implemented early on. Supporting documents such as 'top tips for the transition of vulnerable learners' (appendix b) and 'helpful transition documents for vulnerable learners' (appendix a) may assist with this.

Term 2 of year 6:

3. Review the children identified in the year 5/6 screening tool and update accordingly.
4. Primary transition lead to contact secondary transition lead.

5. Begin collating information on identified pupils to share with the secondary school. Try using the 'information on pupils needing an enhanced transition' form (section 7).

Term 4 of year 6:

6. Finish collating information on identified pupils using the 'information on pupils needing an enhanced transition' form (section 7). Send forms to secondary schools once school places are known.

Term 5 of year 6:

7. For each vulnerable learner, meet with secondary staff and parents, as soon as possible, to agree a joint action plan for transition. Try using the 'enhanced transition action plan' (section 7) document. Supporting documents such as 'top tips for the transition of vulnerable learners' (appendix b) and 'helpful transition documents for vulnerable learners' (appendix a) and 'special educational needs support in Oxfordshire schools and settings': Early years and primary and Secondary schools may assist in action planning.

Term 1 of year 7:

8. Build in time to reflect on the transition process between primary and secondary schools and plan adjustments for the following year.

Transition process guidelines

Secondary settings

Whole school approach:

As a school, consider the provision for vulnerable learners at a universal, targeted and individual level. The educational psychology service's good practice guidance 'promoting wellbeing in schools' may be a useful tool to support reflection and planning.

Term 1 - 2 of year 6:

1. As early as possible, secondary transition lead to start making links with primary schools e.g. visits to school/inviting primary schools to attend events at the secondary school etc.

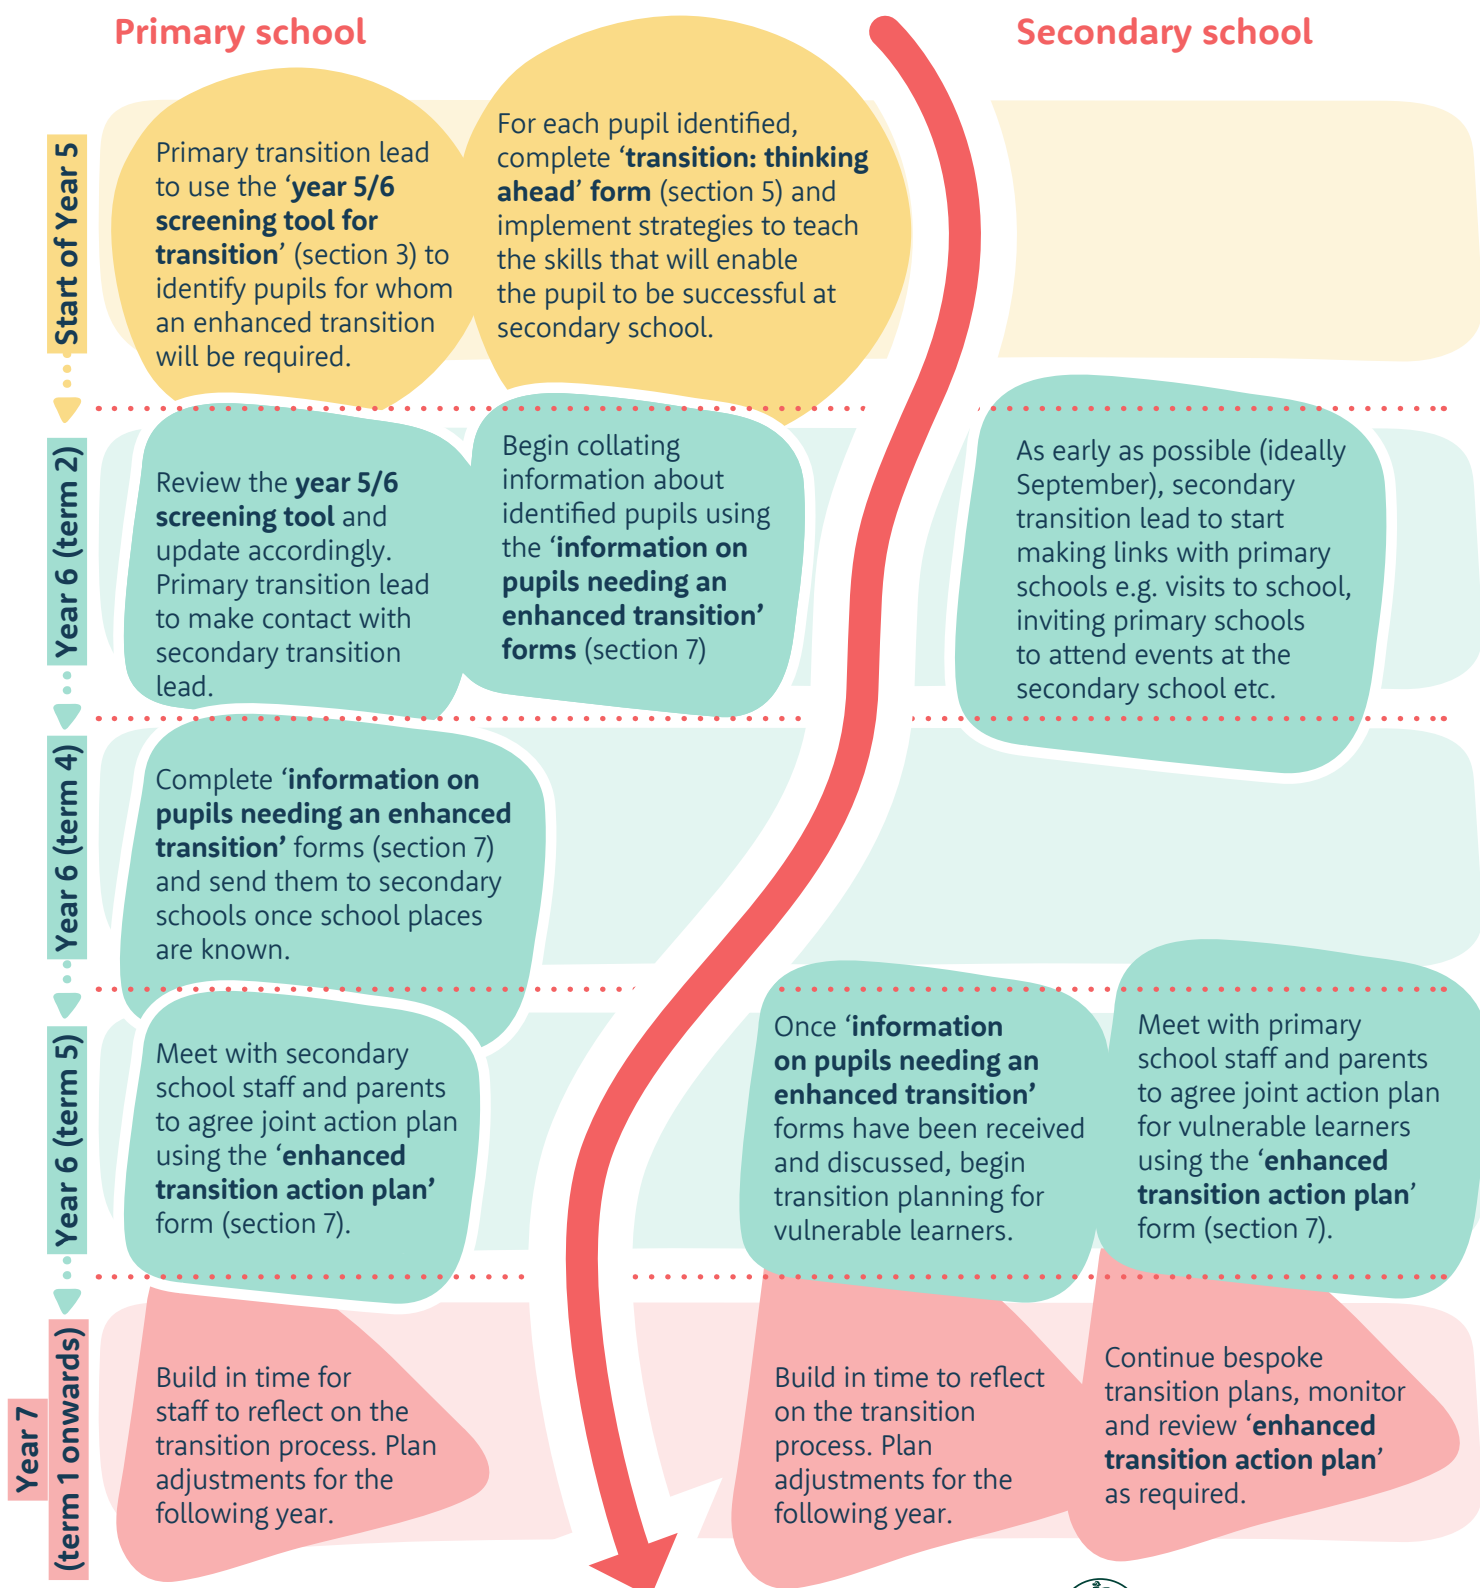

Term 5 of year 6:

2. Once the 'information on pupils needing an enhanced transition' forms (section 7) have been received and discussed, begin bespoke transition plans.
3. Plan meetings with primary staff and parents to agree a joint action plan for each vulnerable learner. Try using the 'enhanced transition action plan' document (section 7). Supporting documents such as 'top tips for the transition of vulnerable learners' (appendix b) and 'helpful transition documents for vulnerable learners' (appendix a) and 'special educational needs support in Oxfordshire schools and settings': Early years and primary and Secondary schools may assist with action planning.

Term 1 of year 7:

4. Continue bespoke transition plans; monitor, adjust and review 'enhanced transition action plan' document (section 7) as required. Monitor individual learners and review support regularly, e.g. every 3-6 weeks.
5. Build in time to reflect on the transition process between primary and secondary schools and plan adjustments for the following year.

Screening tool for transition

Year 5/6 transition screening tool: guidance note

It is not always apparent which children may benefit from an enhanced transition to secondary school. Many factors can impact a young person's sense of resilience and ability to cope in new environments. Points of transition can prove a challenge to young people for a number of reasons. Therefore it is helpful to consider all young people and their needs to understand who may require additional support. A screening tool has been developed to identify the key factors that might impact a young person's ability to manage a significant transition. Ideally all children in the year group would be screened and the most appropriate children would be agreed to receive additional consideration and support around their transition to secondary school. As a guide we would imagine around 10 per cent of children may require enhanced support.

Step 1: At the beginning of year 5, record the name of all the pupils in Year 5 in column A.

Step 2: These are factors that could be relevant for each child:

Personal circumstances e.g. bereavement, family break up, attendance below 90 per cent, more than two moves of school/home, adopted, caring responsibilities at home.

Low self-esteem/resilience (including children who find coping with challenges difficult).

Friendship difficulties e.g. bullying, being bullied, on the periphery of social groups.

Children with identified SEMH needs who receive school support, including those with behavioural issues and pupils who are emotionally withdrawn.

Pupils who are coping well due to a bespoke arrangement in place that would need to be replicated at secondary school (e.g. 'meet and greet' has been required every morning and time with the caretaker twice a week).

Pupils with SEND needs. It is expected that these children would have a pupil profile which outlines the exact strategies and level of support the child is requiring.

Social care involvement and/or safeguarding concerns, including pupils with a TAF.

Step 3: Look at the information gathered, remembering that not all factors have equal weight. Decide on pupils requiring an 'enhanced transition'.

Step 4: Complete an 'information on pupils needing enhanced transition' form for each child who requires this pathway.

Step 5: Review screening tool in year 6, updating as necessary.

Top tips for the transition of vulnerable learners

The following are effective strategies for transition identified by pupils and staff from primary and secondary schools in Oxfordshire in 2016 (IYFAP project data) and 2018 (Inclusion Conference data). A literature review was also carried out which provided additional support for some of the identified strategies.

Identification

Primary school should identify their vulnerable learners and start to plan ahead in year 5.

Information sharing between schools

Both schools have an identified transition lead who is given time in the spring and summer term to oversee the transition process.

Primary schools need to communicate their wealth of knowledge with secondary schools, in a way that is easy to interpret quickly and clear regarding potential strategies to support the young person.

Consistent meetings: regular, face-to-face meetings for primary and secondary school staff are more helpful than sharing documentation alone. The opportunity to discuss issues and ask questions is valuable.

When sharing information remember to include children who are managing well at primary but for whom there are concerns for secondary school.

Relationship between primary and secondary schools

Identify key members of staff to manage the transition process and make contacts.

Establish, value and maintain effective communication and personal links between the schools throughout the year.

Understanding of school structure: ensure the schools have an awareness of the structure of the different school settings their pupils are moving to or coming from.

Progression of curriculum: it is helpful for there to be some overlap in work between primary and secondary school however care should be taken to ensure the secondary curriculum is novel and pitched at the right level. This will aid pupil motivation and progress.

Pupils relationship with new secondary school

Identify key staff: a key staff member should be identified in the secondary school for vulnerable learners. There should be opportunities to develop relationships before transition.

Build relationship with key staff members face-to-face

- 1:1 meetings with tutors
- Fun additional visit days such as summer schools
- Secondary school staff visiting primary school
- Home visits

Personalised planning for students

Use social stories.

Seeking activities linked to pupils' interests.

Setting up buddy systems with older pupils.

Top tips for the transition of vulnerable learners

Building peer relationships

Structured and supported social activities on school visit days.

Sensitive seating / grouping arrangements.

Activities set up in September/October of year 7 to encourage social interaction with suitable staff monitoring / support for vulnerable students.

Close monitoring of social times in year 7.

Careful planning for tutor groups with a friend in their class.

Buddy systems.

Meeting their form group before the start of year 7.

Establishing smaller groups within forms, and the teaching of social skills, to help children develop relationships in their secondary school.

Pupil concerns

Use a worry box in primary school.

Give pupils a chance to talk about things that worry them with adults they trust.

Give pupils a chance to talk to adults from their new school about any issues causing them concern. Managed through opportunities to meet key members of staff from the new school.

Completing meaningful transition booklets with the child.

Set up a year 6 project around the new school structure and systems, to reduce uncertainty.

Parental involvement

Make contact with parents early on in the transition process, particularly for vulnerable learners.

Ensure that parents are involved in the information sharing process and are invited to relevant meetings and spoken to by primary and secondary where necessary.

Ensure that links are made to key secondary staff who can answer parent's questions and ease anxiety.

Parent evenings should be arranged to help build the relationships between the parents and the school.

Manage parental stress / anxiety – e.g. run parent workshops, provide bespoke support where needed.

Empower parents to contact staff and establish effective communication.

Involve parents closely in the whole process.

Consider specific family issues, e.g. how to support parents with EAL / disability.

Support in year 7

Face-to-face training and discussion for staff in specific strategies to support identified vulnerable pupils.

Check in with parents to ask their views on transition and how well their child is settling in.

Monitor closely (staff team meet and review every two weeks).

Top tips for the transition of vulnerable learners

Nominate a member of staff for the vulnerable pupil who will take responsibility to monitor the situation and 'receive' any issues/concerns raised by others.

Have non-teaching staff available all day in term 1 to intervene and support.

Ensure a warm, friendly welcome.

Help pupils to find their way around.

Provide help with homework.

Allow some leniency in expectations for homework and uniform in the first few weeks to help pupils settle in.

Ensure vulnerable students know where they can go to seek help. Consider having staff available at lunchtimes (in classrooms) as some pupils find it hard to find staff after school (e.g. if they have to get the bus).

Call the primary school for further details/support/advice.

Plan and implement individualised support.

Share all relevant information to support the pupil with all staff who need to know – allowing staff the chance to discuss anything before the start of term.

Feedback

Evaluate the whole process and develop an action plan for the following year.

Gain feedback from staff, pupils and parents to continue to refine the transition process and ensure a positive experience for future students transitioning.

Frequently asked questions

1. What should I do if the pupil is not attending?

Every pupil is entitled to a secondary education. It is important that children not currently attending primary school don't miss out.

Include all pupils on the school roll in the usual transition process and consider any additional arrangements that will need to be made to include the child and their family. More bespoke arrangements may need to be made. School should notify the family of the deadline date for school applications and invite them to ask any questions they might have.

When a secondary school place has been allocated invite staff from the secondary school to review meetings in the summer term of year 6.

Further support can be accessed through the county attendance team attendance@oxfordshire.gov.uk

2. What should I do if the pupil is on a reintegration timetable?

Reintegration timetables should only be used as a temporary measure (for up to 6 weeks) to support the young person to build back up to being able to attend full time. It is helpful for a secondary school to know about any pupils who have received a reintegration timetable in years 5 and 6. The 'notification of a temporary reintegration timetable' form should be forwarded on to the secondary school for information along with the other records for the young person, but this issue should be flagged up to ensure that the secondary school is fully aware of the situation.

Where a young person is on a reintegration timetable in the summer term of year 6 the secondary school should be invited to attend review meetings and a clear joint action plan across the schools should be drawn up to support the young person in making a successful transition to secondary school. The young person and their family should be fully involved in drawing up the action plan.

3. Should I start transition in year 5?

Transition works best when it is planned in detail and when there is sufficient time for preparation at primary school, information sharing and planning to meet needs at the beginning of year 7. Beginning to consider transition in year 5 is a very helpful opportunity to ensure a smooth, planned process. Ideally, the year 5 teacher will be supported to evaluate his/her class and consider any concerns/issues for transition in the summer term. A plan can then be developed to support any vulnerable pupils. The plan could include developing pupils' skills in key areas, seeking support to clearly identify any unmet SEN and successful strategies to support the young person, addressing any worries that children may have expressed and working with the young person's family to plan a smooth route from year 6 to year 7.

4. What do I do if a pupil has an EHCP?

The SENDCO in the school should begin to consider transition in year 5 for all pupils with EHCPs. The issue should be addressed in the year 5 annual review and a plan developed for the remaining time at primary school. The information submitted at the year 5 review will often provide the documentation that secondary schools consider when exploring whether they can meet a pupil's needs, so it is helpful if the information is thorough and up to date.

The year 5 annual review is a good time to ask parents for their views regarding secondary transition and encourage them to visit schools in preparation for making their choice in the autumn term. Visiting in year 5 allows more time if they would like to see the school on more than one occasion, or speak to certain members of staff. It is helpful if the annual review is held before the May half term in year 5 to allow parents sufficient time to consider their options.

Indications of parental preference should be included in the school's report of the year 5 annual review or the parents can write a separate letter to the SEN officer. SEN officers need to know parental preference for secondary school place by July in year 5.

All parents will need to inform the SEN officer of their preference for secondary school and apply for a school place following the usual admissions procedure as well.

EHCPs will be updated stating the allocated school for year 7 by 15 February in year 6. The usual admissions process will inform parents of their child's secondary school by 31 March in year 6.

It is helpful to hold a transition meeting/ annual review early in the summer term of year 6, inviting relevant staff from the secondary school to attend. The meeting can be a helpful forum to discuss any concerns and gain better understanding of the arrangements at the secondary school. It can also support effective working relationships between both schools and the family and allow an opportunity for a personalised transition programme to be developed.

All the details in point 3 above are particularly pertinent for young people with an EHCP.

5. What should I do if we have been managing the pupil's SEN well at primary school, but we are worried how they will manage at secondary school?

There are many students with SEN whose needs are well met at primary school where there are concerns how they will manage within the larger, more independent nature of a secondary school. It is helpful to start planning early for these students.

Every pupil is different so it is important to identify the student's strengths and the specific concerns around secondary school for them. An early planning meeting in year 5 between school staff and parents can explore the situation and consider skills that can be taught throughout Years 5 and 6. Progress can then be monitored regularly to give the secondary school clear information in the summer term of Year 6. Early discussions with secondary school staff in the summer term of year 6 can support a transition plan for the young person, ensuring everyone has full, accurate, up to date information.

6. What implications does GDPR have for transition to secondary school?

All schools should have a privacy notice (and some may also have a data sharing protocol) that describes how the school keeps its data secure and who it may share information with. The privacy notice needs to state that a child's records will be passed on to the receiving school via an appropriate, secure system. The privacy notice needs to meet GDPR principles, have a lawful basis and take care of special data.

Frequently asked questions

7. What does the process look like for children going to independent schools or schools outside Oxfordshire?

The guidelines have been produced to encourage best practice. Any receiving school would value the information you have collected and should be keen to engage in liaison to ensure smooth transition for all pupils.

8. I have received different transfer forms from two secondary schools – which do I complete?

It would be helpful to liaise with both schools to encourage them to adopt the same processes and forms to assist primary schools and ensure they receive the most helpful information. The forms included in the transition handbook have been developed in collaboration with primary and secondary schools and should provide all the information required to support transition.

9. A pupil only joined our school a week ago. I have very little information about them.

It will be important to link with the family and gather information about their educational history, gathering records from previous schools and compiling as full a picture as possible for a successful secondary transition.

10. What is enhanced transition?

All pupils will benefit from carefully planned transition support. For some pupils, they will require an 'enhanced' transition that considers their specific circumstances. In these cases staff from the primary and secondary school will work together to take account of parent and child views to plan a supportive transition process which might include additional visits, personalised documentation, identifying key adults, time to meet key staff at the receiving school and explore questions/areas of concern, support to identify things the young person can look forward to when they join the new school and many other ways to ease the transition to the new setting. Essentially an 'enhanced transition' provides something additional to what is available for the majority of young people, designed specifically for the young person in question. It may begin in the summer of year 6 and continue through into the autumn term of year 7.

11. When will year 6 pupils find out the name of their secondary school?

The admissions team will inform parents of their child's secondary school by 31 March in year 6.

12. In year 6 when should schools start transition work?

Good practice would suggest staff across both schools beginning to plan for transition together from term 5 with transition work/visits/support running through term 6 of year 6.

13. If a pupil has transitioned successfully, how will we know?

Some indicators that a pupil has settled well into their new environment would include:

- a) Their attendance levels
- b) Their engagement in lessons, learning and general activities
- c) Their social inclusion (developing friendships)

It would be good practice to ask students how well they feel they have settled into secondary school and if they continue to have any concerns. As part of the transition handbook,

Frequently asked questions

there are surveys developed to gather pupil views about transition in year 6 and year 7 (see pages 20 and 22). There are also surveys to gather parental views included in the handbook (see page 25).

For individual pupils, specific transition outcomes can be considered and agreed during the action planning stage in term 5 of year 6.

14. How do primary schools find out the transition arrangements made for pupils by secondary schools (these are mainly shared with parents)?

The transition leads at the primary and secondary school should liaise to ensure arrangements are clearly communicated across schools (please see checklist of duties for transition leads in the handbook, section 4).
